

Workshop Structure

1 Content Explanation ►►

Since people have a fresh mind in the beginning, the first part is a theoretical, more traditional explanation of key contents. For instance, we always link a new concept to an example from daily life (the password is like the key to your home, as suggested by Simona Savoldi Poli) and show few slides. Nobody needs to take notes, since users are provided with the online material.

2 Practicing

In this part, the user is more active, yet they are guided through exercises with an increasing difficulty. The user gets familiar with the device. The tutor makes sure that everyone has understood the theoretical contents by solving practical problems individually.

3 Group Games

In the last part, things get more interesting, since the workshop turns into a playful and gamified experience. Group dynamics are exploited to make this part a positive peek in the UX and to consolidate knowledge. Users are having fun while fixing the contents in their minds.

WHERE TO FIND IT

It can be purchased from the tutor after the workshop.

WHAT IT IS

It is a physical thorough booklet which contains detailed and extensive information about the topic of the workshop.

WHO IS IT FOR

Users who want to go deeper into a topic and be extra sure they do not miss anything.

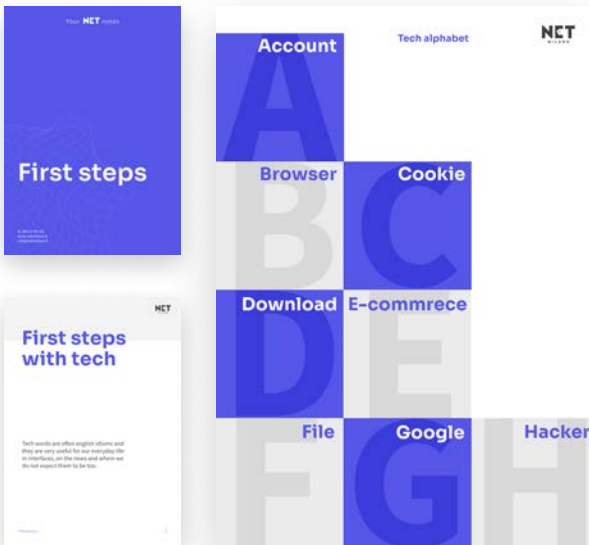

NET Notes

NET's methodology encourages the user to take little notes during the workshops. The reason is that NET promotes live interactions and practical learning, minimising the time for taking notes and isolating from the environment. In fact, each user with a NET profile on the website can download a brief summary of the workshop contents after attending one directly from their profile.
